Most Gigantic Explosion in World's History.

50 TONS OF DYNAMITE

From Portsmouth, N. H., Times, July 22, 1905.

The PRESS had hoped, last week to publish a full report of the most wonderful as well as the most successful dynamite explosion ever manipulated in this or any other country, that which the National Government has for yerrs been expending large sums of money, to aid navigation, but failed to secure, The fact that the major portion of the large shells of dynamite especially the gelatine shells, three feet in length were manufactured by the Emporium Powder Manufacturing Company. When the great and fatal explosion took place at Emporium this Company was pushing the work for the Portsmouth contract The jelatine plant being only partially destroyed the Company managed to keep and fill the contract in time.

Mr. Fred Julian, who was present at Portsmouth, representing the Emporium interests, as well as assisting with the work, declaress it to have been the most complete piece of work ever engineered. Dynamite experts from all parts of the United States declared the powder excellent and the Little Italian, wo had charge of the packing, jumped into the air when he saw that the explosion was going off, "Hell, but him good."

At ten minutes past four, ten minutes behind the schedule time, the button was pressed which turned on the electric current and the great explosion took place.

There was a loud report followed by three sharp cracks.

Thousands of gallons of water were thrown into the air more than a hundred feet.

The water turned a dark murky color and a wave at least twenty feet high swept over toward the Newcastle shore.

The air was filled with flying rocks and debris, the most of which seemed to be headed toward Pierce Island, where thousands of people were congregated.

At the navy yard no damage was done, not even a pane of glass being shattered, while in this city a tremble as of a slight earthquake was all that could be noticed.

For months or to be more exact, ever since it was officially given out that fifty tons of dynamite would be exploded at one time to remove the last of what the famous "Pull-and-be-Damned" point, people of this city have had explosion on the brain, and not even the announcement that the peace conference was to come here, made them forget this most wonderful of "blow-ups."

It has been the topic of conversation everywhere, in the parlor, in the work shop and in the field Everybody has expressed their views on the subject and where one would come forward with the remark that no damage would result another has said that the whole or part of the city would receive serious damage.

But to-day all have been nervous and some have worried much about their future. Many refused to stay in the city and went off for the day, in order that they may be safe, leaving their home to receive what-ever damage may come to it.

WITH THE SPECTATORS

This afternoon the entire population of the city, with the exception of those who took to the country out of fear, has assembled at the waters front to see all that is to be seen along with 10,000 or more strangers who have come from all parts of New England.

People are here from everywhere, New England of course turning out the biggest crowd, and every incoming train and trolley has not a seat to spare.

In addition there have arrived special delegations of noted scientific men from New York, Boston, Montrial and Chicago, come to see what effect fifty ton of dynamite really has.

Henderson's Point being practically a part of the government reservation the navy yard officials took extraordinary precautions looking to the safety of people and their valuables. The ammunition in the yard magazine was placed on board a coal barge and towed to the lower harbor out of the way.

The point is now known as Henderson's Point, named thus three years ago by the contracting company who had charge of the job. The point formerly bore the name of "Pull-and-be-Damned." This name originated in revolutionary times, when a boat from a British man-of-war was chasing a Yankee craft inward. Reaching the narrows the American sailors being familiar with the strong current push through easily. But the British boat the instant it struck the current whirled quickly around. After repeated uncessful efforts the officers at the helm said, "Pull and be damned" You can't get around that point and they didn't.

WHERE MISS FOSTER PRESSED THE BUTTON.

In anticipation of a serious damage the navy yard was closed down at noon and the workmen allowed to go home. After that hour nobody was allowed on the yard except those having a special pass.

At ten minutes of four a long blast was sounded from the navy yard whistle to warn people that the time of the blast was near at hand.

The blast was fired from a stand erected on Reseavoir hill, just back off and 850 feet from the point of explosion in full view of everything at the point.

Upon this stand a most distinguished party witnessed the event, including Rear Admiral W. W. Mead, U. S. N., and other naval officers stationed at the yard, with members of the congressional delegation and many prominent engineers from all sections of the country.

At the base of this stand stood Miss Edith M. Foster the beautiful daughter of Supt O. H. Foster, with her right hand ready to press the button that caused the explosion.

The dynamite especially constructed arrived in two cargoes, the first July 3 and the last cargo on Monday. This was made up in sticks two feet long and varing from two to four inches in thickness The work of charging the holes began Saturday, July 8, and was under the personal supervision of Verrocaki, an Italian who has been handling dynamite for 20 years. The charging was done by a tube where the holes were not clear, and otherwise with a long pole rammer. In each hole about 300 pounds of dynamite was placed and in each hole three fuses or matches were inserted. These matches were the largest ever imported into this country, being made in Germany, especially for the job and they contain 45 grains of the highest explosives.

EYES OF THE WORLD UPON US.

The use of such a great quantity of high explosives under such circumstances was never before attempted, and the undertaking is watched by engineers all over the world. The blowing up of Hell Gate, at the entrance to New York Harbor, was of small importance in comparison. This work, which attracted wide attention at the time, was accomplished by tunnelling under the rock, the explosives, being placed in the tunnell. At Henderson's Point the dynamite was distributed in more than 400 borings, encircling an erea of over three acres, and all exploded at the same moment.

CAUSE OF THE EXPLOSION.

What is known as Henderson's Point juts out from the Kittory side of the harbor, near the navy yard, and the formation of this stretch of land was such as to cause innumerable currents. The end that projects out into the harbor entrance was about 800 feet wide, but on each side a sweeping curve of beach the neck ran back, growing gradually narrower until it reached a place inshore where the water swept over during very high tides and made the point practically an island. This resulted in currents which ran with tremendous force in many directions and made the channel at times almost unnavigable,

Large vessels could not get into the harbor without the help of tugs, and even then gteat difficulty was experienced. The bow would be in one current and the stern in another, and captains have declared that their vessels were in three different currents, all forcing the craft in different directions. Only the most skilled oarsman thoroughly acquainted with the harbor could do anything with a small boat and even be could not steer a straight course from point to point.

The dry dock is one of the finest in the world, a mammoth affair built on a solid rock foundation and capable of holding the largest war vessel afloat. With this dock inside the harbor it became necessary to make it accessible for all kinds of warskips and it was finally decided to remove about 350 feet from the end of Henderson's Point.

Over the dam and almost reaching its top is the rushing water of the channel, and vessels sailing by are almost on a level with the top of the dam. Surrounded almost by this great force of water, the men in the hole below worked in apparent safety, and yet should there have been a log break it is daubtful whether all could have escaped. Their only hope would have been to climb the long ladders to the top or float on the top of the rising water until they were rescued. But the possibility of such a break was very remote; they had been working down there for months apparently as safe as the men in the great quarries at Rockport, with which this great excavation on Henderson's Point might be compared.

The work of getting ready for the "blow-up" has been going on for some weeks and everything within a distance of 200 feet was removed; Then came the work of boring the holes for the placing of the dynamite. For this work the longest drills ever manufactured were used. Each boring was about 60 feet long and from two to three inches in diameter. Those reaching under the harbor were about five feet apart. Other holes equally close were drilled in the solid wall of rock above and about 400 holes were thus bored in order to thoroughly honeycomb the area from which the stone was to be removed.

When all of the dynamite had been placed the basin was flooded, the water being let in gradually so that no damage would be done to the wires. With the point under water there was a stretch of 1,000 feet from shore to shore. The mines were covered by about 30 feet of water.

Geologists have been greatly interested in the undertaking as well as engineers. Both agreed that the geological formation of the rock at the point was favorable for a successful termination of the final stroke in this remarkable engineering feat. It was found the stratification run from northeast to Childs Body Found.

On Friday Aug. 11th, about 3:30 p. m., the body of a child about two months old was found in the West Branch of the Susquehanna River about six feet from the shore, about 150 yards east of Driftwood Borough line. It was a male child nicely dressed and looked as though it had been well cared for when living. One side of its head was crushed in. Squire Bernard Nefcy, of Driftwood empanelled a Jury and the verdict was that the child met its death from unknown causes. Overseer of the Poor, B.J. Collins took charge of the remains and entered them in the Driftwood cemetery. No clue to the identity of the child has yet been found.

Will be Married.

Jasper Harris left last Sunday for Syracuse, N. Y., where arrangements are being perfected for a big wedding to take place, Sunday, August 20th. One of the contracting parties in this affair is our townsman Mr. Jasper Harris, and the other is Miss Minnie Tumpowsky, of Syracuse. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's parents at the above named place. Mr. Harris is one of our clothmerchants and enjoys a large patronage and will make a good husband. The lady of his choice is one of Syra popular young people. After a short honeymoon they will return to Emporium and take up their abode at the New Warner. We extend congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Harris and wish them a happy and prosperous married career.

A False Alarm.

A Slav from the Coal Chutes was in town last Friday morning and imbibed too much conversation water, and started toward the Chutes about noon, as usual in such cases, he made up his bed between the tracks just ahead of the Buffalo Flyer's time. The engineer of the flyer not seeing him until after the engine had passed, supposed naturally that he had struck the man; stopped at Cameron station and notified operator Hoyt and Foreman Robinson who hastened to the spot. Mr. Robinson taking his men and hand car along. Upon arriving upon the scene the man was placed on the car and taken to the Chutes, the man then wanted to be taken farther but his resuers were not in a trifling mood, so he offered them ten cents as an inducement. But Mr. Robinson was not in a pleasant frame of mind and administered some good sound advise and started the man on his way up the county road.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you weep alone."

It is said that Jupiter laughed for seven days after he was born. If you want to experience a fellow feeling for Jupitor you should go to a performance of the great Sig. Sautelle and Welsh Bros.' Combined Railroad Shows, which will exhibit in Emporium, Saturday afternoon and evening, August 26, and witness the antics of the army of clowns; for, if you do see these funny fellows you will surely laugh many a day after. The clowns of this big circus are positively funny.

The circus display proper is one of phenomenal magnitude and merit. The progoam is calculated to suit every arenic taste and preference, being composed of every conceivable species of circus act. But the whole is diversified frequently by the coterie of clowns, who, by the original and spontaneous humor, cause the spectators to emit veritable volcanic eruptions of ha-has, which loudly reverberate in the dome of the huge amphitheater. Some people are of the opinion that the clown is no longer an essential or important part of the circus; however, nothing could be farther from the truth, for as a matter of fact, much of the success of the circus depends on these funmakers. The little folks simply demand them, everybody knows that the circus must give the small boy and girl whatever they demand. The clowns must be furnished, and the great Sig. Sautelle and Welsh Bros.' circus furnishes them. Years ago, in the palmy days of the one ring wagon circus, a single singing Shakesperean clown would suffice; at the present time, with a large railroad show, a score or more up-to-date clowns are required. If you are feeling blue or have that tired feeling, the clowns can cure you. Come and let them demonstrate their phenomenal ability. Remember the day and date. Saturday, August 26, at Emporium. This big circus will give exhibitions in Johnsonburg Monday, August 28.

Dance.

There will a dance given on the Rich Valley platform, Friday evening, August 18th. The public is cordially invited to attend; a good time will be enjoyed by all. Don't miss it.

Another Fire at Cameron.

At 1:30 Friday morning Aug. 11th, fire was discovered in the meat market owned by Mr. Geary, of Lock Haven, and Mr. Tanner, of Driftwood. Mr. McCann employed as night watchman for the Cameron Lumber Company and an Italian named Bevacqua were the first to discover the fire and quickly sounded the alarm. Calling out every one in the town including women and children. The rescuing party went to work at once removing the grocery stock from Schwab Bro's store which was the second door from the market and as there was no water available and no insurance on the Schwab Bro's goods, everyone worked heroically to save the merchandise, which was accomplished in a very short time. Engineer Probst brought the Lumber Company's engine and an empty box car which was soon loaded with merchandise and Post Office records, mail matter, etc., as the post office was also located in the store. The car was quickly pulled out of reach of the fire. Fortunately there was no wind, the evening being very calm and the fire did not spread. The Valley Hotel which is just across the way took fire in several places owing to the intense heat, but was promptly extinguished. Proprietor Olsen however had his goods all packed however, ready to move in a moments notice in case the worst came. The three buildings destroyed were, the meat market, the store rooms formerly occupied by the Cameron Store Co., and Schwab Bro's store. All except meat market were owned by L. K. Huntington, of Emporium, and fully covered by insurance. The meat market was owned by Mr. Tanner and Mr. Geary; insured for $500.00. These gentlemen were the heaviest losers, losing about $100.00 worth of meats and a refrigerator valued at $400.00. An investigation as to the origin of the fire shows that it must have been the work of an incendiary as parties who were first on the scene discovered a small hole about eight inches square in the read door of the meat market which had apparently been cut with an axe which indicates that it was done to gain an entrance to fire the building as fire started from that point. It is to be hoped that the party or parties who did this piece of work will soon be apprehended for at the present rate fires are breaking out no one will be safe to live in the houses here to say nothing of putting their goods in.

Event of the Season.

The dance to be given at the Rich Valley platform Friday evening, Aug. 18th promises to be the event of season. All lovers of this amusement should not fail to attend The best of order, with first class music, and being such a short distance from town, a general good time is assured.

Mrs. R. H. Gilbert Dead.

The wife of the Rev. R. H. Gilbert, D. D., a former pastor of the First Methodist Church of this place died in Methodist General Hospital at Philadelphia last Sunday.

She was Mr. Gilbert's second wife and the sympathy of a large circle of Emporium friends will be with him in this afflictive dispensation. The funeral was held at Berwick yesterday.

Base Ball.

The game of base ball between Emporium and Renovo at Keystone Park, Saturday afternoon, resulted in a victory for the visitors by a score of 4 to 2. The game was called about 5:15 and after the fourth inning it began to rain but the boys continued to play, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather.

Up to Date Quarantine.

So great is the yellow fever scare in Baton Rouge, the Capitol of Louisiana, that the authorities have gone the length of cutting off all the communication, even by wire, with New Orleans. It is also reported that the town of Wesson, Miss., refused to receive a car load of carbolic acid from New Orleans until it had first been disinfected!

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Mr. John Kelley died at his home on Maple street, Tuesday morning from a serious case of stomach trouble of long standing. Deceased was 57 years of age and is survived by a wife. He was an industrious man of good habits, and commanded in a marked degree the esteem of his neighbors. Funeral services were held from St. Marks Church this morning at 9 o'clock, the Rev. Father Downey officiating.

NOTES OF INTEREST.

Owing to the derailment of one car at Johnsonburg, Sunday, Erie mail was about three hours late.

We acknowledge the receipt of a copy of the Game, Fish and Forestry Laws of the Commonwealth.

The calling off of the races scheduled for the last day of the firemen's convention at Bradford, on account of the rain, was a great disappointment to the visiting companies who had teams ready to participate in the events.

A tramp knocked at the door of a farm house in a little country town and when the lady opened the door he said in a trembling voice. "Have you a square meal to give a hungry man?" "Yes sir," she said, "and he will be home at six o'clock to get it."

Persons desiring information regarding the Musical Kindergarten now being organized by Lillian Heilman, may obtain same by telephoning her or calling at her residence on West Fourth street. The first class will begin work Monday the twenty-first.

A professor has discovered among some ancient ruins what is supposed to be the eleventh commandment. The text is as follows: "Emas rof yltpmorp yap uoht sselnu repapswen a daer ton tlahs uoht." The commandment is easily translated by beginning at the end of the sentence and reading backwards.—Ex.

The young man who thinks himself too good to do common labor, but who is willing that his mother support him by daily toil, may be counted upon to make a mighty poor citizen of this Republic. What he needs is to be put out to grass so that he may "root hog or die." If he don't root the world will be be better off if he dies.

According to the North East Breeze, the grape crop promises to be the largest in years; the vines are simply loaded and the clusters are large and splendidly formed. Very little of disease of the vine and fruit has been reported thus far, and unless some unforseen damage occurs the grape crop for 1905 will be a record-smasher both in quantity and quality.

That is a deplorable story which comes from Mercer, Pa., at a Congregational meeting of a church in that place, held for the purpose of issuing a call to a Port Huron, Mich., minister; 98 votes were cast, while a count established the fact that only 92 persons were present and six of the number were ineligible. Twenty-nine members have entered a protest against what is charged as ballot-box stuffing.

One of the most eccentric wills ever filed for probate was that of Miss Anna Gunning, of Pittsburg. In her will she bequeths the bulk of her half million dollars to Carl F. Miller, who was at one time an admirer of the deceased, on condition that he secure an absolute divorce from his present wife or that Mrs. Miller should die. Mr. Miller being perfectly satisfied with his matrimonial venture, has no intention of sueing for a divorce, and his wife has no intention of dying, consequently the legacy lapses.

Power of Money.

It is safe to say that never before in the history of the country were the springs of action, as well as the condition of things, more closely examined than now. The revelations of theft in high places have apparently caused great searchings of heart among us, with a result of wrong emphasis at times, as in the case of the preacher in New York that considered graft the result of the extravagance of women. A sober view would hold the extravagance of whatever kind is a result rather than a cause, and certainly the examples of great accumulation and the manner of them contradict the notion that it is for anything that money will buy tnat it is coveted. Great as our luxury is—greater perhaps than any that the world ever saw—the examples of monopoly and the history of exaction do not point to luxury as a moving cause. It is rather the simple love of money for itself—the development of the miser's passion on a large scale. The Baltimore American suggests that the passion has taken the place with us that chivalry once held, and that love of power held; or, rather, that the love of money typifies to us what those things typified in other times. Money is power now, so let those that love power put money in their purses.

Going Through College.

In Columbia in the last college year 537 students earned $92,436. This is six-fold the sum earned by students in the university five years ago. This is true in most colleges. When President Hadley was installed he spoke of the increasing difficulty of paying for a college education. This is a mistake, comments the Philadelphia Press. It was never so easy to get a college education as now. The newspapers alone pay enough for college news to support a number of men. The work in the community by which a man can earn money while studying has greatly increased. Wealth has brought to college many stupid and idle boys, and their pay for "tuition" keeps a number of students going in the institutions for men and a few in colleges for women, as yet but little cursed by the student sent to college for "social" advantages. The colleges, too, have made it easier by requiring less. If a man can get through college and play football he ought to be able to earn his living and go through college.

Gloomy Outlook.

A Missouri judge has indorsed the decree of the Cook county judiciary permitting a wife to go through her husband's pockets while he is sweetly dreaming the happy hours away. This opinion has been defended also by some of the ablest members of the Chicago Woman's club, and up to the present time no married man has been found with spunk enough to contest it. What the wife will do if she finds a hole in the pocket instead of money depends measurably on the nature of the woman. There is no telling to what extremities the man will be pushed if the judiciary continues to favor the women, but the time may come when we shall be obliged to pay our street car fare in checks.

The breezy correspondent of the Maine Woods who writes over the name Fly Rod combines notes on love and fishing in an alluring way. In her last letter she tells of a honeymoon pair whom she met on July 2, last year, when they fished together and caught a 6¾-pound salmon. She has just had a letter from them, in which they tell with joy of the arrival this year on July 2 of a baby girl who weighed exactly the same as their last year's fish. Much prose and more fiction has been written on the Maine lakes, but here is something that nearly approaches the idyllic.

JAPAN WANTS CASH AND LAND

Her Envoys Notify Russia of the Price She Has Fixed for Peace

RUSSIA TO PAY COST OF WAR

No Sum Is Fixed, the Amount to be Arranged After Japan's War Expenses Have Been Ascertained — Russia Must Leave Manchuria.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 11.—Reimbursement for the expenses sustained in the prosecution of the war and the cession of the island of Sakhalin constitute the main features of the peace conditions handed by Baron Komura to Mr. Witte at the conclusion of Thursday morning's session of the plenipotentiaries in the general stores building of the Portsmouth navy yard.

The word "indemnity" is carefully avoided, the term employed being "reimbursement" for the cost of the war. No sum is fixed, the amount being distinctly adjourned for mutual adjustment between the two countries after the Japanese expenditure has been ascertained. These are the two all important conditions and those which the Russian plenipotentiaries find absolutely unacceptable. The other terms are:

The cession of the Russian leases to the Liaotung peninsula, comprising Port Arthur and Dalny. The evacuation of the entire province of Manchuria, the retrocession to China of any privileges Russia may have in the province and the recognition by Russia of the principle of the "open door." The cession to Japan of the Chinese Eastern railroad below Harbin, the main line through Northern Manchuria to Vladivostok to remain Russian property. The recognition of the Japanese protectorate over Korea. The grant of fishing rights to Japan in the waters of the Siberian littoral northward from Vladivostok to Bering Sea. The relinquishment to Japan of the Russian warships interned in neutral ports. Finally a limitation upon the naval strength of Russia in eastern waters.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 12.—Russia's reply to the Japanese terms will be delivered by Mr. Witte to Baron Komura at 9:30 o'clock this morning. The reply is written, there being two texts, one in French, the other in English. Upon the two crucial points, indemnity and the cession of the island of Sakhalin, the reply is an absolute non-possimus. Other points are accepted as bases for discussion, while still others are accepted conditionally. The reply is rather long because in ennumerating the conditions upon which discussion is admitted and those upon which consideration is declined, reasons and arguments are given.

The Japanese rejoinder to the Russian reply is expected to be practically an ultimatum—a statement of their irreducible minimum which they will ask the Russians to take or leave. As far as the cost of the war is concerned, while the Japanese have mentioned no sum it is known that they estimate the cost to date at $850,000,000.

TALKED TO THOUSANDS.

President Roosevelt Visits Wilkesbarre, Pa., and Is Given a Very Enthusiastic Reception.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 11.—The president of the United States, who came here Thursday and made an address to the delegates attending the annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America and the members of the United Mine Workers of America, was given a most enthusiastic reception. In fact, the entire trip through New Jersey and Pennsylvania to this city was a series of ovations.

The president arrived here at 3 o'clock and was driven directly to the speakers' stand on the river common. Besides the president those who spoke were Cardinal Gibbons, Mayor Kirkendall, of this city; John Mitchell, president of the Miners' union, and Rev. J. J. Curran, of this city.

WAS CRUSHED IN THE ICE.

The Fiala-Zeigler Expedition Was Rescued After Its Ship Had Been Wrecked in the Arctic Seas.

Honningsvaag, Norway, Aug. 11.—The Arctic steamer Terra Nova, which went to the relief of the Fiala-Zeigler Polar expedition, has rescued Anthony Fiala and all the others connected with the expedition, with the exception of one Norwegian seaman, who died from natural causes. The ship America, which took out the expedition, was crushed in the ice early in the winter of 1903-4 and lost.

The 37 members of the expedition who returned to safety are all in good health, despite their deprivations and trying experiences and their prolonged imprisonment in the Arctic, the expedition having been severed from all communication with the outside world since July, 1903.

Two Men Killed.

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 11.—In a freight wreck on the Rock Island railway near Limon Junction, Dr. Wright Andyman and Joseph Miller, both of Omaha, were killed. The men are said to have been riding on the trucks.

Johnson Confesses.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 11.—Harry Johnson early this morning confessed to Detective McDonnell that Harry Parker murdered Pawnbroker Moyer on July 28, while Johnson rifled the pawnshop.

RECIPROCITY THAT IS REAL

Not the Kind That Seeks to Undermine the Prosperity of the Nation.

No doubt the national reciprocity conference which has been called to meet in Chicago August 15 and 16 will be an interesting and important gathering, says the Tribune. The subject of reciprocity with other nations, looking to the extension of our trade relations and a mutually beneficial interchange of products, is rightly regarded by the people of the United States as one of much moment. Hence close attention will be given to the proceedings at Chicago, and if out of the conference there shall come results which will promise material advantages to this country the action taken will be certain to receive a large degree of popular approval.

It will be well, however, not to be too enthusiastic in advance over what the conference is expected to do. There are many indications that the elements which would make reciprocity merely a stepping stone to free trade are exceedingly active and seek to control the deliberations of the conference. This is the more auspicious from the fact that these elements have not always been so conspicuously devoted to reciprocity. For instance, when the republican party declared for such reciprocity as might be carried into effect without seriously weakening the economic safeguards which the nation now maintains, many of the persons now loudly shouting for reciprocity were then much given to scornful criticism. They promptly and vigorously affirmed that protection and reciprocity were incompatible and there was no limit to the ridicule they poured upon the idea of arranging for reciprocity while a high tariff was maintained.

This change of tune may be due to conviction, but it will be sure to evoke more of less skepticism. Reciprocity within reasonable limits, such as those to which the republican party has proposed to restrict it, undoubtedly would be a good thing. Reciprocity which insidiously and deceptively seeks to undermine the system under which this nation has so greatly prospered is something very different. The real need of reciprocity is greater in foreign lands than our own. The continued and increasing extent of our exportations and especially of manufactures the most highly protected of the products of the United States furnishes ample testimony on this point. It may be well to have reciprocity, but it should not be sought on such terms as will assure the surrender of the unquestionably great opportunities Americans now enjoy in exchange for those of doubtful value.

THE NATION'S VOICE.

People Still Think as They Did When They Voted Last Fall.

The voice of the nation speaks in Ohio when the platform of the republican party in that state says:

"No nation has ever known such widespread prosperity as the United States has enjoyed since the restoration of the republican party to power by McKinley's election. Wage earners have had more work at better prices farmers have had the best home markets, making the merchants prosperous, the factories busy and all commerce and transportation thrive. With sound money, protection and other prudent legislation comfort and happiness have come to American homes, and no step has been taken that may imperil or threaten our good times.

Every one remembers, says the Portsmouth (N. H.) Chronicle how public confidence rose anew when President McKinley was elected in 1896, and figures show from that day to this our volume of prosperity has increased without cessation and now promises to continue so long as the republican party is kept in power and remains true to the principles of the protective tariff.

The Kansas City Journal says in a recent issue:

"The republican party cannot claim the credit for nature's share in producing the bountiful harvests with which the nation has been blessed, but it can make just claims to the credit of creating the wholesome condition that have assured prosperity in every line of trade and commerce and agriculture."

It can claim more than this. It can claim by virtue of the protective tariff to have made it possible for these vast crops to be sold at greatly remunerative prices. It can claim credit for defeating the traitorous so-called republicans of a single state, that Canadian wheat be admitted to this country on a "reciprocity" plan. The Chronicle has hitherto correctly defined republican reciprocity as that which gives a preferential tariff "on those articles or products which we do not ourselves manufacture or raise."

The state elections which will be held this fall are going to afford conclusive proof that the people have not changed their minds since they elected Roosevelt and Fairbanks a few months ago, and that they still appreciate prosperity. The voice of the nation will speak in 1905.

☞Tariff revision is well enough to consider if any was needed and whenever any revision shall be needed to preserve the balance of equal justice to all, but when that time arrives the articles to be revised will be considered publicly and it will be made plain that such revision is made necessary and will inflict no injustice and will not disturb the principle of the protective tariff, that of equal and exact justice and success to all the interests involved by any changes that may be suggested.—American Economist.

THE DEMOCRATIC REVIVAL.

What Bryan Is Trying to Throw Into the Comatose Party to Enliven It.

The subject of William J. Bryan's address at Madison, Wis., was "The Revival of Democracy."

"The revival of democracy," he said, "has been more pronounced the last few years than for a quarter of a century past." That was as much as to say that the democracy had been engaged in "reviving" itself for the last 25 years, if no longer, and that in its normal condition it was in need of revival at all times.

Mr. Bryan, remarks the Chicago Chronicle, might as well have said plainly that the democratic party is in a comatose state, hovering between life and death, and never showing any signs of consciousness except under the influence of restoratives.

This estimate of the democratic party should be considered in connection with what Mr. Bryan said about the republican party. He laid emphasis on the statement that the republican party had espoused all of the old-fashioned democratic policies. To prove this he enumerated several of them and applauded them.

The inference is, of course, that the democrats have backslidden from their primitive faith and that the process of "revival" consists in trying to become like the republican prarty. If his position be that both parties now have the same principles then the still more destructive inference must be drawn that the reason the people repudiated the democrats at the polls was that they did not believe the democratic party was honest enough to carry out its own alleged principles.

Mr. Bryan also delivered his customary enlogy on Gov. La Follette, the greatest discount on whose reputation is that he excites the extravagant administration of William J. Bryan.

The symposium appropriately wound up with the nomination of Mr. Bryan for the presidency in 1908, which might have been made still more "taking" by mentioning the fact that the republican party could be relied on to bear all the expenses of his nomination and his canvass.

AMERICANS ARE LENDERS.

Changed Condition That Pleases the Country, But Worries Free Traders.

The United States is not only the wealthiest country in the world, but it has more gold than any other, and this hoard is increasing. Taking the account for two or three years past, gold is increasing in the United States faster than the population, says the Burlington Hawk-Eye. Wars are costly, but this country has been financing most of the present conflict. We have been lending gold to both combatants, though not directly, except in a small degree. Paris and London have been promising the gold. The United States has been shipping it to those centers to make these pledges good. We have been shipping some on our own account. Ten years ago we were borrowing gold to keep up the greenback redemption fund. To-day we are lending it, and despite the extent of our loans the home stock is kept up at high figures. The change in the situation pleases the country.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

True. Therefore let us by political intrigue, factionalism and in every way possible seek to change the conditions.

The country was never more prosperous than now. Let us revise the tariff and put a check upon manufactures and all concurrent industries.

The great west has developed wonderfully under an untrammeled commercial and transportation policy; we enjoy the best markets in the world, and farm values have broken all precedents. Let us hasten to change these favoring conditions by giving the general government the power to make rates and invite the adoption of a distance freight tariff as the final sequence of that policy.

This country has gold to loan to the world. This is the sequence of the present conserving national policies. Therefore they must be pernicious. For whatever is is wrong. Let us hasten to adopt municipal ownership and general government ownership and the fruitage of applied socialism.

And yet—.

Better Slow Down.

The best and most sensible method of remedying such abuses as exist is to get after the railroads and compel them to give uniform rates to all shippers, to compel express companies to reduce their charges, to give the Standard Oil company and the beef companies such an overhauling that they shall be compelled to come back to decency and to go lightly with the general tariff until the Panama canal is completed. Here in Maine we are enjoying great prosperity from the existing tariff. It is for our financial interests to maintain present rates.—Bangor News.

☞Colonel Bryan has been less conspicuous than usual in the recent past. Possibly looking in the woods for democrats.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

☞There is some comfort to be derived from Mr. Bryan's reiteration that it is too early to discuss a standard-bearer of the party in 1908.—Indianapolis News (Ind.)

☞Prosperity has continued for so many years that it no longer attracts attention under that name, and the advanced thinkers are now referring to it by hyperprosperity.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DOZENS CAUGHT IN THE RUINS

Big Building Occupied by a Department Store at Albany, N. Y., Collapsed.

WHILE REPAIRS WERE BEING MADE

Thirteen Persons Dead and Two Probably Fatally Injured—Nearly All the Victims Were Employes of the Store—The Loss Is $200,000.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 10.—The collapse of the John G. Myers Co.'s department store Tuesday, which resulted in the death of 13 persons and probably the fatal injury of two others, will be investigated by a special commission. Yesterday afternoon, when the searchers announced their belief that no more bodies were in the ruins, Mayor Gaus called a meeting of the heads of city departments and decided to appoint three non-residents, two building contractors and one civil engineer or architect, to inquire into the cause of the disaster and report where to place the blame.

To avoid the possibility of a prejudiced inquiry, Mayor Gaus decided that all the investigators shall be out of town men.

The discovery that the 13 bodies already taken out will account probably for all the victims of the accident is a surprise to Albanians, who until Wednesday afternoon expected that at least a dozen more mangled forms were buried beneath the ruins. So sure are the wreckers that no more bodies are there that they have suspended their search and devoted their attention to demolishing the brick walls which overhang the debris and threaten to collapse.

The small number of deaths, small when it is considered that nearly 100 persons went down with the wreck, is accounted for by the fact that scarcely any of the brick walls fell and the debris consisted mostly of large timbers and plaster, with only an occasional iron girder. One of these iron beams crushed the life out of four young girls.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 9.—The middle section of the big department store of the John G. Myers Co., in North Pearl street, collapsed Tuesday, carrying down with it over 100 persons.

The pillar which gave way supported the ends of two great girders, and when it fell the main support of the center part of the building was gone. With a noise that could be heard blocks away and which shook the adjoining buildings, nearly half the great structure, from cellar to roof, and extending from one side wall to the other, came grinding down. Into this cavern slid scores of employes who were working on the floors above and lacked the warning which enabled those in the basement to escape. Some, however, were apprised of the danger by falling plaster and saved themselves by rushing to the front of the store or to the fire escape in the rear.

The building which collapsed is owned partly by the Myers Co. and partly by the estate of the late David Orr. The loss to the company is estimated at between $200,000 and $300,000. The building was a very old one, but until now considered sound.

A Terrible Experience.

New York, Aug. 11.—Stratford Shoals light and perhaps the big Long Island Sound steamers which are guided by it, were saved last week through the heroic struggle which the keeper of the light, Merrill Hulse, made for seven days against an insane man, marooned alone with the keeper and determined to extinguish the light. The madman was Hulse's brother keeper, Julius Coster, who went crazy and tried to destroy his light. In attempts to get at the light Coster wanted to kill Hulse.

A Strike of Job Printers.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 11.—Union compositors went on strike yesterday in three Detroit book and job printing shops, the R. L. Polk Printing Co., Raynor & Taylor and Winn & Hammond. It was understood that the printers were preparing to demand the eight-hour day on January 1 all over the country. The Detroit Typothetae declared for the open shop on July 1, when the old contract expired. Yesterday the hiring of the first non-union men resulted in a strike.

A Policeman's Crime.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Oscar Benson, a policeman, yesterday shot and killed his brother-in-law, Matthew Mamer, 50 years old, fatally wounded Nicholas Ketten, 50 years old, a clerk in Mamer's jewelry store at Harrison and Desplaines streets, and then committed suicide. The tragedy was enacted in Mamer's store.

Thousands are Starving.

Seville, Spain, Aug. 11.—The condition of the farming community in this province is desperate. Thousands of laborers being without bread or other food, have been reduced to eating the roots of wild plants.

Training Ship Ran Ashore.

Mackinaw, Mich., Aug. 9.—The United States steamer Dorothea, the training ship of the Illinois naval reserve which is on her annual cruise, went ashore Tuesday at Old Point Mackinaw. The steamer is heavily listed to starboard and is thought to be badly damaged. The Dorothea is lying within 150 feet of the beach.

Trolley Cars Collided.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 9.—One man was killed and 14 injured in a head-on collision of trolley cars eight miles from this city last night.

The Maintenance of Way forces of the Erie are now engaged in laying 350 miles of 90-pound steel rails on the main track. A larger mileage has never been laid in any one year before. The Erie has always been noted for its good track, and the management finds that it is necessary to use a heavier rail on account of the weight of the several hundred new engines that have been purchased in the last two years. Much of the rail being removed has only been in track four or five years and will be used on branch lines.

BREAD RIOTS IN NEW YORK CITY

A Strike of Jewish Bakers Causes Trouble in the Hebrew District of the East Side.

BREAD IS THROWN INTO GUTTERS

Policemen Were Called Out to Quell Disturbances and in One Instance the Reserves Were Called Upon to Subdue the Mob.

New York, Aug. 10.—Women yesterday joined in the strike operations of the kosher bread bakers, who are producing a bread famine in the Hebrew quarters of New York and Brooklyn.

Hundreds of loaves of this bread were taken by women from the peddlers who attempted to sell them and thrown into the gutters, where the mud caused by recent rains instantly ruined the foodstuff.

The strikers attempted to locate the shops which baked this bread, since it was more plentiful yesterday than during former days of the strike. Philadelphia shops are said to have supplied some of the kosher loaves and, acting on this rumor, the strikers say they will send a committee to Philadelphia to stop the exportation to New York, if possible. President Kurtz, of the striking bakers' organization, sent a delegation to Brooklyn to use peaceful inducements on the bakers of a Park avenue bake shop, one of the largest in Brooklyn, to stop supplying bread to the Hebrews of the East Side of Manhattan.

There was a riotous demonstration in front of a delicatessen store in Clinton street when a gang of young roughs discovered that the store was offering kosher bread for sale. They rushed the store, seized the bread and threw it into the street. Half a block away was the headquarters of the strikers. The police and many strikers rushed to the store and a riotous scene ensued. Reserves of the Union Market police station finally dispersed the crowd.

Two policemen were injured in a bread riot which occurred in the basement of a Hebrew bakery in Allen street. Two hundred men entered the shop and, overpowering the policeman who guarded it, carried out barrels of dough which were ready for baking and emptied it into the gutter. Several barrels of flour also were emptied into the street. Extra police were called out to disperse the mob.

A committee of one hundred sent from strike headquarters last night to a bakery in Orchard street to induce non-union workmen to quit, attacked the shop, hearing of which hundreds of strikers rushed from the meeting to the scene of conflict. One policeman who attempted to defend the non-union men was severely beaten, but held his ground until rescued. The patrol wagon bringing a squad of reserves was furiously assailed by the mob, who stopped the horses and even dragged some of the men from their seats. The rest quickly alighted and charged the mob through a rain of bottles and bricks that poured from roofs and windows. After ten minutes' hard fighting the mob was dispersed and two men, both severely injured, were arrested. The shop in which the fighting began was completely wrecked.

A PRELATE DIES.

Archbishop Chapelle, of New Orleans, Succumbs to Yellow Fever.

New Orleans, Aug. 10.—Report of board of health to 6 p. m. Wednesday:

New cases, 63.
Total to date, 679.
Deaths Wednesday, 7.
Total to date, 119.
New sub-foci, 12.
Total to date, 130.
Cases under treatment, 265.

Public interest in the general yellow fever situation suffered a temporary relapse yesterday in the death of Archbishop Chapelle, the most distinguished victim of the present scourge. Although the prelate was a subject of scientific treatment and attention, his physique and fatigued condition on his return from a particularly irksome trip through the country counted against him. His death, while generally deplored, is not taken as a refutation of the medical fraternity's opinion that with good care and proper treatment, the number of deaths is not likely to be large in proportion to the number of cases.

Actual control of sanitary work passed to the marine hospital service yesterday and Dr. Gessner was placed in charge. Advices from Mississippi indicate that the people of the rural regions are growing restless under the severity of the quarantines which have cut off supplies. Secretary Hunter, of the Mississippi board of health, announces himself as utterly opposed to shotgun quarantines.

Gov. Blanchard telegraphed that more than a majority of the members of the legislature had replied favoring the appropriation of $100,000 to the fever fund, so the loan will be effected with the financial agents to-day.

A Fatal Collision.

Houston, Tex., Aug. 10.—James L. Darraugh, a wealthy real estate man, while speeding his automobile near here yesterday ran into a milk wagon. The car was overturned and Mr. Darraugh was killed, his neck being broken. The driver of the wagon was seriously injured.

Gen. Emmons Clark Dies.

New York, Aug. 10.—Gen. Emmons Clark, former colonel of the Seventh regiment and a civil war veteran, died yesterday at his home here, aged 78 years.

TRUSTS MUST OBEY THE LAW

President Roosevelt Delivers a Very Notable Address at Chautauqua, N. Y.

BELIEVES IN FEDERAL CONTROL

The President Declares that the Great Corporations of This Country Should be Regulated by the National Government.

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 12.—"Let us give President Roosevelt the Chautauqua salute at its best." With these words Bishop John Vincent yesterday closed his brief introduction of the president to the Chautauqua assembly. Instantly 10,000 white handkerchiefs fluttered in the air over the heads of the vast audience in the great amphitheatre. It was an inspiring salute and as President Roosevelt stepped forward the audience rose as one person and cheered enthusiastically. In his speech he said:

"One of the main features of our national government policy should be the effort to secure effective supervisory and regulatory control over all great corporations doing an inter-state business.

"Unfortunately, some corporations, and very wealthy ones at that, exhaust every effort which can be suggested by the highest ability, or secured by the most lavish expenditure of money, to defeat the purposes of the laws on the statute books.

"It has become our conviction that in some cases, such as that of the beef packers recently indicted in Chicago, it is impossible longer to show leniency. Moreover, if the existing law proves to be inadequate, so that under established rules of evidence clear violations may not be readily proved, defiance of the law must inevitably lead to further legislation. This legislation may be more drastic than I would prefer.

"Either they will have to submit to reasonable supervision and regulation by the national authorities, or else they will ultimately have to submit to governmental action of a far more drastic type. I think our people would be unwise if they let any exasperation due to the acts of certain great corporations drive them into drastic action, and I should oppose such action. But the great corporations are themselves to blame if by their opposition to what is legal and just they foster the popular feeling which tells for such drastic action.

"I believe that all corporations engaged in inter-state commerce should be under the supervision of the national government."

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 12.—President Roosevelt on his return trip from Chautauqua to his Oyster Bay home passed through three great states, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. At every station where a stop was made he was accorded a greeting as affectionate as it was enthusiastic. Along the entire route rain fell heavily, but the storm seemed to have little effect on the determination of the people to see the president and if possible to hear him speak. During the afternoon he made brief addresses from the rear platform of his car at Salamanca, Hornellsville and Waverly.

TRADE REVIEW.

Adverse Factors of a Temporary Nature Are Noted in the Business Situation.

New York, Aug. 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Trade reports are less uniformly favorable, but adverse factors are of a temporary nature, and the net result for the week is satisfactory. Numerous strikes have occurred, exerting the customary pernicious influence over business, and the epidemic of yellow fever is restricting southern trade. On the other hand, thermal conditions have facilitated retail trade, crop prospects have greatly improved, and out of town buyers are numerous in all the leading markets.

Manufacturing plants are increasingly active, textile mills still occupying the strongest position, while shoe shops are not making concessions to get business. Iron furnaces and steel mills make progress, but less rapidly. Lumber mills and dealers are having an exceptionally busy season. Railway earnings in July were 7.4 per cent. greater than in the same month last year.

Failures this week numbered 222 in the United States, compared with 222 a year ago, and 19 in Canada, against 33 last year.

A Mysterious Affair.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 12.—Edward Drouin, formerly wealthy and once a member of the firm of Work & Drouin, of Philadelphia, was found dead Friday in the hallway of his residence. His widow, apparently distracted by the death of her husband, was kneeling by the body, holding the feet of the corpse in the air, "in order," as she said, "to allow the soul to escape." Mrs. Drouin was a daughter of S. H. Thompson, a wealthy grocer of Peoria.

A Chauffeur Is Sent to Prison.

Rear Admiral Benham Dies.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The death of Rear Admiral Andrew Benham, retired, at Lake Mahopac, N. Y., was reported to the navy department Friday. He was a member of the Schley court of inquiry.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PAINT.

Important Memorandum.—The painter is the most important factor in painting. A job complete, done by a good painter, with the best quality of paint, costing say $60.00 ($40.00 labor, $20.00 paint), will last five years. The same paint applied by a dauber ($30.00 labor, $20.00 paint), will last only two years. Thus the "per-year-cost" of the good painter's job is $12.00—the poor painter's, $20.00.

Above all, USE GOOD PAINT!

The oil! linseed oil! Just pure linseed is the "life"—the one great requisite of good paint for which there is no substitute—and the sure way to get the pure, fresh linseed oil is to buy the oil and separately. For every gallon of Kinloch Paint buy one gallon of linseed oil. This makes two gallons of paint, ready for use. You then know that the paint you're putting on your house is alive—"the genuine oil is in it," and paint is not paint unless it contains 50% of really pure oil. We will further explain the virtues of Kinloch Paint if you will call and see us.

Kinloch MADE TO MEET EAST BOUND RATES HOUSE PAINT

The College Bred R. R. Supt.

In railroad work we encounter green horns in all the various departments of the service. As new men are being hired all the time and the old timers put the new recruits through the mill by sending them after red oil to put in the red lanterns and having them try the lung tester or some other tricks. Each new comer takes his medicine and that is all about it. He in turn has his chance to laugh at the next victim, and soon. However in official circles, if any such things happen they seldom leak out.

The following true incident goes to show that there is once in a while a novoice gets in the upper circle and proves that there is a good deal of railroading outside of books. Some years ago on a certain railroad in central New York, the president of the road had a son who went through college with flying colors and claimed to be familiar with railroad work from "A to Z." Accordingly his father appointed him Division Superintendent of one of the branches of the road. One day a train going north was sidewiped by a south-bound train while crossing over, and the tender of the engine of the north-bound train was damaged so badly that it would not hold water. Otherwise the engine and train were not damaged. The train was promptly side-tracked and the fire drawn on the disabled engine. The conductor wired the superintendent for another engine and the engineer wired to have his crippled engine towed to the shops. The Supt. flew in a rage and sent the following message to the engineer:

To — Supt. S. The engine I am running uses water as well as coal. Signed —, Engineer. It is needless to add that no messages were exchanged. J. F. S.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Is It Right.

Is it right that a property-owner should lose $4.20 to let a dealer make 50 cents? A dealer makes more on fourteen gallons of ready for use paint. at $1.50 per gallon, than our agent does on eight gallons of L. & M. paint and six gallons of linseed oil, which make fourteen gallons of the best paint in the world, at $1.20 per gallon; the property-owner loses just $4.20. Is it right?

It only requires 4 gallons of L. & M., and 3 gallons linseed oil to paint a moderate sized house.

The difference between treacle and molasses lies in the fact that treacle comes from sugar in the process of making, while molasses is obtained in the process of refining. BEWARE OF SUMMER GERMS.

Will Cause Sickness Unless Stomach is Strengthened With Mi-o-na.

One tablet of Mi-o-na taken before each meal during the summer months, whenever the stomach is out of order, or the digestion weak, will do more than any other treatment to prevent the diseases caused by germs at this season.

If the stomach is week so that food does not readily digest in it, the food will become a sour, slimy, fermenting mass in the digestive organs, the ideal condition for germs to cause bowel trouble, diarrhoea, or other summer illness.

Mi-o-na will soothe and heal the irritated mucous membrane of the stomach and digestive tract, stimulate the solar plexus, and strengthen the nervous system. This remarkable remedy will make the whole digestive system so healthy, clean and sweet that food cannot ferment, and any disease germs which may enter the stomach will be destroyed.

Just one small tablet out of a 50 cent box of Mi o-na before eating, and you will have no headaches, back-ache, poor appetite, distress after eating, heart-burn, furred tongue, sleeplessness, or general debility. It will tone up the digestive system and give pertect health and strength.

Take Mi-o-na now, and L. Taggart will guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. The risk is all his.

SLEEPING.

Bless the wee heart of you!
Bless your wee heart!
My Slumberland baby
With lips half apart;
With one dimpled fist
'Neath your golden-crowned head,
And one like a rose leaf
Thrown far on the spread.

Bless the wee heart of you,
Girlie, my own!
Dad's bestest baby,
Blossom half blown,
Pink bud unfolding
Its petals so fair—
Bless you! I'm stooping
And kissing your hair!

Bless you, I'm stooping—
Soft shadows at play
Are round you—I'm crowding
The angels away
With all of my loving!
But, dear, Eyes-o'-blue,
Dad's loving you more
Than the angels love you.

One kiss for your hair!
And one for your eyes!
And one for the palm
Where a pink shadow lies!
And one for your lips!
And one for your round knee!
Oh, babe, in your dreaming,
Dream something of me!

A ROSE OF NORMANDY

By WILLIAM R. A. WILSON

CHAPTER X.

WHEREIN A SEA IS CROSSED, A SECRET IS DISCOVERED, AND TONTI RECEIVES A BLOW.

The lights were soon gone, but still the silent figure of La Salle remained on the poop. Pompon, seizing a rope, soon raised his head above the level of the rail. So wrapped in thought was La Salle that he took no notice of him until he had reached the deck. Then startled at the sudden noiseless appearance of a human form so near him, he stepped back a pace, and, drawing his sword, demanded who it was.

"Save your sword-thrusts for your enemies; use them not on a friend," replied the figure.

"What! Pompon's voice!" exclaimed La Salle, as he seized his hand in great delight. "Pompon's face!" he added, as he peered anxiously through the darkness. "Mon Dieu! I was thinking of you and Tonti but a moment ago. Where is he, for surely you are together?"

"He is taking a last view of the shore-lights from his private balcony. Perhaps he has finished," was the reply; and leaning over the rail, Pompon gave a low whistle. In a moment Tonti had clambered up, and soon all three were engaged in an eager conversation.

"I had given you up for lost," said La Salle. "All Paris was whispering of your duel with the Comte de Miron and his death. But all was mystery. He had disappeared, his body no doubt secreted by his coachman; you, too, had disappeared, having fled to England, it was said; while Pompon, whom I searched for diligently, was nowhere to be found. The king was inclined to be vexed over your disobeying his order concerning duelling, but I think he was secretly pleased at getting rid of the Comte de Miron, whom he disliked. Only the influence of Colbert kept him about the court."

Thus did the partners in the firm of M. Tonti and Company hold their first meeting outside France, and the night was far spent before they finished recounting their adventures and laying plans for the future. No light was thrown upon the identity of their mysterious protector, and the matter was finally dismissed as a riddle to be solved at some later day.

There was plenty of time for the full discussion of their plans, for the "Saint Honore," although a stanch little craft of 150 tons, was driven from her course by contrary winds, and drifted through many lazy days for lack of any. The passengers consisted of a party of soldiers sent to swell the available fighting force to be used against the Indians; a flock of 30 girls traveling under the care of Madame Bourdon, all seeking homes and husbands in the new strange lands across the sea; ship-carpenters and workers in iron, for the need of building small ships to trade with the Indians and explore the coasts had been emphasized by Frontenac in his letters to the king and Colbert; stone masons and builders to help the settlers erect their homes as well as build new forts; adventurers, escaped exiles, and political refugees, seeking under new names to travel in the king's ship, and then lose themselves in the savage wilds. Among these were some 30 men whom La Salle had tempted by goodly sums and far goodlier promises of riches to be found in the New World, and tales of mystery and of untold wealth that only needed daring hearts and hands to secure it; some were honest artisans whom he needed in his explorations, especially to build ships on the lakes. For this purpose a store of iron, cordage, and anchors was carefully packed away in the hold.

La Salle and Tonti kept to themselves, but Pompon went about the ship making friends with every one in spite of his ugly face, busying himself in finding out everything he could from each person, amusing them, but telling nothing in return. He diced with the soldiers and adventurers, and spun yarns with the sailors derived from his experience in the galleys, but carefully disguised, he himself usually figuring as a brave officer in command of one of his majesty's ships; the women folks he sedulously shunned.

The three spent many evenings in La Salle's quarters because they were much roomier than the rest, and over their wine they gradually revealed much of their past lives to each other, and grew in camaraderie, and the bonds of good fellowship were knit more tightly.

A mass of rolling water encompassed them about. Each little wave laughed and sparkled beneath the sun's first kiss in the early morning; each little wave donned its white nightcap as the wind freshened after the sun went down; each little wave with its tiny strength urged on the ship. And so the summer days were filled with light and the nights with the moon's sheen upon the surface of the water or the myriad reflection of the stars that guided the ship's course through the long lone watches.

LA SALLE REMAINED ON THE POOP.

The gray twilight and the first half of the night were often spent in conversation by the three explorers on the poop just outside of hearing of the helmsman. Then it was that La Salle told of his early life: of the days spent among his Jesuit teachers; of the first voyage to the new land; of his early efforts to penetrate the wilderness; of the life and history of the colony; of the rivalry between himself and the Jesuit missionaries and their followers for the fur-trade with the Indians and the efforts they made use of to thwart his plans. At times the genial side of his nature showed itself in the recital of amusing incidents of the court, at Quebec, in the camp.

Thus passed the days until full two months had gone and the summer winds had changed to September gales. Already the floating sea-weed and screaming birds told them that land was near. One night the three sat listening to the sound of wind and wave. Tonti was silent, while his companions talked. The master of the ship had been commissioned to bring over a lute for the Comte de Frontenac. It was this lute that Tonti had borrowed, and, heedless now and then of the flagging conversation, he idly picked out some old forgotten strains upon the strings, his thoughts far distant.

At length Pompon left them. La Salle, after a few moments' silence, said:

"Mon Dieu! you are a man of accomplishments; mon ami; a soldier and a musician. It needs only that you become a poet and the three great arts will be found combined in one man."

Tonti smiled. "We once toasted your Lily of Poitou," he said. "Listen now, while I tell you of my Rose of Normandy. Perhaps if you will but forget the singer, you may be pleased like I am with the subject of my song." So saying, he played a few chords and began to sing to an old Italian air:

Whilst poets celebrate in rhyme
Some comely maid of high degree,
The praises rare I'd gladly sing
Of Rose, my Rose, of Normandy.

The sunbeams nestle in her hair,
Her lips are wondrous red to see,
A roguish glance beams from her eye,
The eye of Rose of Normandy.

Sweet thoughts and pure possess her mind,
From earthly dross and blemish free;
An earnest purpose fills the soul
Of Rose, my Rose, of Normandy.

Within the empire of her heart
I fain would reign its king to be;
But other hands I fear will pluck
This Rose, my Rose, of Normandy.

"Bravo! Monsieur Poet," applauded La Salle. "Would that I had your gift of rhyming. I fear my sober monastic training destroyed any latent talent I might have had. If I could I would sing to you in return the charms of my fair one."

A silence ensued, broken only by the creaking of the ship's timbers, the shrilling of the wind through the rigging, and the sound of rushing waters as the vessel careened on her course. A falling star shot its tiny spark across the heavens; the muffled sound of human voices came up from the interior of the "Saint Honore;" the ship's bell announced the arrival of midnight.

At length Tonti aroused himself from his revery and spoke to his friend, who in turn was unconscious of his surroundings, so great was the power of thought over his physical environment.

"Do you recollect our first meeting, mon capitaine, how you promised to tell me the name of your lady when we had once left the land behind us? Perhaps although your rhymes be faulty, one could learn something of her from your prose."

"True, mon ami, but words, even though they be not those of poesy, would utterly fail to describe the person of her who has entered my life but recently, but whose angelic presence I trust shall remain with me forever. But I shall spare you all rhapsodies. She whom I call my Lily of Poitou is a daughter of a noble of that province; her name, Renee d'Outrelaise. She lives with mademoiselle as a companion and friend. So far she has not been seen at court, but keeps close to her protectress, and is visible only to those honored few to whom mademoiselle chooses to show her; for all of which I am thankful. The princess as a patroness of the arts and literature has been pleased to interest herself in my explorations and has invited me on a number of occasions to rehearse to her my adventures in New France and relate all that would interest her about the land and its inhabitants. Mlle. d'Outrelaise has been present at most of our interviews, and it was while thus engaged that I realized that a new strange feeling had arisen within my heart, a feeling that men lightly call love, but which I recognize as an inspiring, ennobling influence that means much more to me."

La Salle, not noticing his companion's silence, continued:

"Mademoiselle has known by reputation some of my relatives and connections and thinks highly of me as well as my projects, and I know approves my suit. Renee has never shown aught in her demeanor that betokened a return of my affection, nor have I ever spoken words of love to her, partly from my lack of courage and partly from the fact that I have seen her alone but once. I feel safe in her retired life, believing mademoiselle to be my ally; besides, she is young yet. If I but accomplish what I hope to do, I can return in two or three years with honor, power, and wealth and claim her for my own. She will be guided largely in her choice of a husband by the princess' counsel and wishes. I saw her the day I left Paris, and our parting interview augered well for my hopes."

"How so?" asked Tonti in a hard strained voice.

"I detected evidences of long weeping in her eyes; she was agitated beyond measure, and expressed the warmest wishes for the safety and success of my expedition; and best of all, after I had kissed the hand of mademoiselle in adieu, she permitted me the same privilege, and gave me as a parting remembrance a silken flag of France worked by her own fair fingers."

The approach of Pompon cut short any further speech from La Salle and permitted Tonti to withdraw to another portion of the ship, a prey to the deepest emotion. As he stood by the rail and looked across the tumbling, surging mass of waters which a rising storm had quickened, he felt in full sympathy with its tempestuous nature. And when the rain fell and the wind became a gale and the vessel bobbed about on the water, he still retained his post, oblivious of the outer tempest, engulfed as was his spirit amid the waves of jealous alarm, unhappiness, and despair.

Here was a blight upon his newformed hopes; the man whom he had promised to serve as companion and friend, the one to whom he warmed as never to mortal man, was now an unconscious rival. In the first onrush of the tempest that stirred his passionate nature he hated him, and cursed the day they first met. Were not the glory and honor and riches that were just ahead on the explorer's path sufficient but that he must take his love, she whom he realized was all in all to him, too? And the melody of the song he had sung with its closing words, words written in a moment of joy and hope, that were in reality full of pathetic foreboding, passed through his mind again:

But other hands I fear will pluck
This Rose, my Rose, of Normandy.

But when the tide of feeling had reached its full, then came the calm before the ebb. The soldier's sense of justice showed him clearly that his friend was innocent of any desire to work him harm. That he really was the interloper, for La Salle had known her for weeks and months, while his acquaintance was but that of a day. And the strong feeling of remaining stanchly loyal to his commander, even though it meant to take sides against himself, came to his rescue. Then, too, the careful recollection of the two short glimpses he had of the fair lady showed him but too plainly that he had small grounds of hope on which to build.

On into the early morning watches he struggled with himself. The love of a man for a woman battled strong with a man's love for honor and that which he deemed the right. And lo! a paradox appeared, for in the strife although honor won, yet in no wise was his love for the woman conquered or belittled by the strife, but rather was it enlarged, illumined, and made stronger still, for he could at once give full allegiance to his love and yet resolve that come what might he would in no wise be false to his friend; that he could glorify and worship the one and keep this secret hid from the other; could aid his companion with all his strength and leave the future to le bon Dieu, who controls every man's destiny. The battle once won, he could look forward with the hope that by being true to both now his reward would somehow be forthcoming when the work was done. And as the first morning rays touched the ship's deck they fell upon the figure of a man, not worn out and fatigued by a night's struggle and exposure, but firm and erect, gazing toward the new land but one day's journey distant, with the light of faith and hope and love in his countenance; and the greatest of these was love.

That night three goblets were filled to the brim and emptied and filled again. Three manly breasts responded to the thrill of a common lot, a common joy, a common purpose. Three hands clasped fealty with hands that gripped them fast. They pledged the king, the ship, New France, the expedition, and last of all, themselves.

"To three gallant comrades," cried La Salle when the last bumper was raised, "who will to each other be true—"

"And faithful," added Tonti, in a voice vibrating with deep feeling.

"Even unto death," said Pompon gravely.

Thus ran the toast; so drank they all.

CHAPTER XI.

WHEREIN ARE MET A NEW WORLD, AN ALLY IN HIGH PLACES, AND A TEMPEST IN A TEAPOT.

A dull, dark day; an unfriendly wind, necessitating frequent tacking of the ship; the lowering of clouds that now and then swept down upon them, enveloping everything in mist; the cry of water-fowl unseen; the sharp, scared glance of gulls that suddenly appeared from out the fog, only to veer abruptly away and be swallowed up again; and then the uplift of the hazy curtain, and the sight of a dim low line of coast with shadowy suggestion of vast mountain ranges on the horizon's rim;—this was their welcome to New France. As yet no indication appeared to show them they had left the ocean and were ascending the mighty stream that drained a continent. But finally, when on the near approach to the northern shore a glimpse was caught of the trading-station at Tadoussac, the weary passengers first realized that their journey was nigh ended. All crowded to the rail and strained their eyes to feast them on the land of their dreams, the harbor of their hopes. The three comrades stood beside the captain as they watched the sun's first rays light up the beetling rocks of Mal bay. All day the glad sunlight and the clear breeze dried the ship's sails and warmed the hearts of all on board as a panorama of hitherto unknown beauty, painted by the hand of nature, was slowly unrolled before their wondering eyes.

The river gradually narrowed, and soon both shores were brought within sight of all. Waterfalls fell like trembling white ribbons down the barren mountain-sides; the rising smoke from wigwam and seigniory betokened the presence of man; the yellow strip of stubble-fields from which the grain had been harvested followed the shore between the water's edge and the mass of evergreen verdure of the interior.

At length, after passing through the northern channel between the island of Orleans, edged with houses and clearings, and the mainland shores of Beaupre and Beauport, the good ship glided into the quiet bay, while the towering heights of Quebec, puissant stronghold of a new country, the comely mistress of all this fair land, the goal of the entire company, smiled grimly down upon them. The promontory, crowned with fort, churches, seminary, and convent, looked indeed the mighty, silent bulwark that it was. Soon was the silence broken, for as the vessel let go her anchor and fired her salute, a puff of smoke came from the fort and the long, deep boom of cannon sounded clear in the early autumn air, while from the flagstaff on the Chateau St. Louis a white banner, spangled with fleurs-de-lis, waved official welcome to the king's ship.

The Age of Hurry.

There is no backwater to which this impetuous tide of hurry has not penetrated; and if we try to find one wherein we may lie in a punt on pink cushions under a tree we are certain to be made restless by the long single hoot of a fussy steam launch or the short double one of a tearing motor car, and instead of lying still we jump up and cry, "Oh, wait for me and take me! I'm in a fearful hurry to get there and do it with you!" And when we are taken in and have recovered our breath and well on our way there to do it, we remember to ask where we are bound for and what we are going to do!—A Countess, in London Outlook.

An Anglo-American Incident.

This story is told by J. P. Carter, of the American embassy in London. It was a fashionable function, and the orchestra had been playing somewhat loudly. A well-known Englishman was discussing the friendly relations of England and America with a very attractive American woman. The music stopped suddenly, and in the silence which followed the Englishman was heard to remark in heartfelt accents:—"And the more we know one another the more dearly we must love one another." Both hastened to offer explanations as to the entirely political character of their remarks, but nothing could stop the laughter of the delighted audience.—N. Y. Herald.

Tact of Childhood.

A small girl of three on going to bed one evening invited her grandmother to "dess put your head on the pillow." Grandma complied, but the capricious little minx soon decided that she would like a change, and took this means to make her grandmother move:

"Grandmamma, is God everywhere?"
"Yes, indeed," replied grandmamma.
"In this house?" "Yes."
"In this room?" "Yes."
"In this bed?" "Yes, my child, why do you ask?"
"Well, then all I have to say is its pwitty crowded."—N. Y. Times.

Not Wealth.

It is not the possession of money that constitutes wealth, that gives the highest satisfaction and awakens the consciousness of noble achievement, the assurance that one is fulfilling his mission, and that he is reading aright the sealed message which the Creator placed in his hand at birth.—Success Magazine.

UNDERTAKING.

LIGHTS IN LITERATURE.

The first volume of the unpublished writings of the late Theodore Mommsen has been prepared for publication by Prof. Otto Hersenheld, the literary executor of the deceased historian.

Rider Haggard is best known in America as a writer of startling romances, but in his own country he is recognized as an earnest student of the great problem of the poor. For years the author has been laboring for the development of the agricultural side of English life as a means of relieving the congested conditions of large cities.

Anthony Hope, the British novelist and playwright, was educated for the law, but says himself in his droll way that he failed to make a living at his profession and had to turn to writing in self-defense. He declares that in all his life of 42 years there has not come one incident that is worth telling—he has just lived "the average life of an English gentleman."

It will probably seem strange to some that John Hay in his later life was inclined to be rather ashamed of "Little Breeches" and "Jim Bludso," the two of his poems that have always been the most widely quoted. Similarly James Russell Lowell was rather ashamed in his declining years of the "Bigelow Papers," which many regard as his most original and effective work, and Minister Phelps never liked to be quoted as the author of that immortal poem about Essex Junction.

William Dean Howells has some encouraging words to say to young aspirants for literary honors. "There is room for a good story of any kind," he said, recently. "Although an editor governs his judgment by what his readers have liked before, often rejecting something they would like much better, no good thing in a story ever remains unpublished. Some one will read it, feel, its truth and print it if it is true." But he goes on with a word of advice. "I do not believe anyone can write a novel, with rare exceptions, until he has lived at least 35 years in experience of the world."

ODDITIES OF INVENTION.

Prof. Baiardi, of Turin, has succeeded in perfecting his invention of photographing the eye and advocates its practical use for diagnosis of diseases of that organ.

A French engineer named Otto has invented an apparatus for purifying drinking water at home; its capacity is 60 gallons an hour, and its cost about the same as that of an electric incandescent light. Ozone is generated, which kills all germs in the water.

In some parts of the west where irrigation is much depended upon, a "current motor" is in use which, by an ingenious use of levers and iron blades, makes the water of flowing streams pump itself. The pressure of the current causes the blade to swing backward and forward, and the force thus exerted is communicated to machinery which runs a pump.

The recent classification at the British patent office shows that cooking is the popular subject of invention, having been the subject of 3,575 British patents in 48 years, or an average of 73 a year. Umbrellas brought out 1,457 inventions, and hats 1,411. Invention tends to run in grooves, 1896 and 1897 reflecting the enormous development in cycles, while motor vehicle inventions have doubled since 1900.

CONCERNING THE CLERGY.

Rev. Joseph W. Cross, the oldest living alumnus of Harvard college and the Andover theological seminary, celebrated recently his ninety-seventh birthday.

At the late commencement of Ohio Wesleyan university the degree of D. D. was conferred on Rev. Byron Palmer, of the East Ohio conference, author of "God's White Throne."

Rev. Dr. Barnard M. Kaplan, rabbi of the Bush Street temple of San Francisco, received from President Roosevelt an autograph copy of his California speeches for the benefit of the Bush Street temple.

Glasgow university has conferred the degree of D. D. upon Rev. W. H. Bentley in recognition of his services on the Congo. Mr. Bentley is the son of a missionary, and has given 27 years of service in Africa. He is the author of the Congo dictionary and grammar, has translated the New Testament, and is now engaged in translating the Old Testament.

BABY'S INSTINCT

Shows He Knew What Food to Stick To

Forwarding a photo of a splendidly handsome and healthy young boy, a happy mother writes from an Ohio town:

"The enclosed picture shows my 4-year-old Grape-Nuts boy.

"Since he was 2 years old he has eaten nothing but Grape-Nuts. He demands and gets this food three times a day. This may seem rather unusual, but he does not care for anything else after he has eaten his Grape-Nuts, which he uses with milk or cream, and then he is through with his meal. Even on Thanksgiving day he refused turkey and all the good things that make up that great dinner, and ate his dish of Grape-Nuts and cream with the best results and none of the evils that the other foolish members of the family experienced.

"He is never sick, has a beautiful complexion, and is considered a very handsome boy. May the Postum Company prosper and long continue to furnish their wholesome food." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in every pkg.

For Outing Wear in the Autumn

NEW SWEATERS.

What the outdoor girl shall wear depends very largely upon locality. Paris may say this is proper for mountain-climbing, that for tennis and golf; London may present designs suitable for English country needs; and when it comes time for girls in "the states" to plan a wardrobe for vacation needs they will have to adapt and change. The States are too big, the climate of too great variety to make possible an unchangeable mode.

It was we, I believe, that called into being the sweater, the garment of the unpretty name, but of infinite use. As the fall days descend upon us we are glad indeed to pull on this elastic and "comfy" wrap. One can carry it so easily—it will not muss nor cumber—and when the mountain top is reached, the bright day has turned into cool evening, there is no better friend than the faithful sweater.

Londoners have improved on our early models, and now we have a presentable garment, and a variety to choose from. The first ones, those that had to be pulled on over the head, were certainly lacking are scarcely to be recognized as near relations of the natty garment of the present.

A dozen different models stand before us. There is the yachting sweater, with sailor collar, embroidered dickey and scarf; it comes well down over the hips, fits in at the waist, and is finished with a belt. The sleeves are quite full, to allow for the full blouse sleeve now obtaining.

Another good sweater that comes down over the hips is an excellent model. It is double breasted, and has a collar that can be turned back in revers or crossed and worn on the breast. Two other models are long; one is collarless and well belted in; the other is on the box-coat order, also collarless, and has a straight sleeve wide at the cuff. The last is very jaunty and effective.

Hand-knit sweaters are often seen, and are not so very expensive. They are a means by which women in reduced circumstances can eke out an income with a little home-work; and as the directions for making are given so explicitly, a woman of average skill is generally able to turn out a highly satisfactory garment.

There are some waist-line sweaters offered of rather fancy sort. One has bishop sleeves finished with a narrow, tight cuff of contrasting wool, and square neck with a very high collar is also of the contrasting wool. Then the bolero has even invaded this field, we are shown the bolero sweater with half sleeve and open in front. It seems to us a not particularly sensible garment.

The surplice sweater is graceful; and we also have one that buttons down the front, is plain, but distinguished by a very broad belt, which looks like a baby's knitted band. The first is much the better. Collars liked are gray and red, and red alone is popular. There are nice white ones with color in the trimmings, but they are too fine for the real outing girl, whose clothes are meant for utility rather than display.

Leather belts and tailored stocks are best for occasions informal enough for the sweater to be called into requisition. Leather to-day comes in such pretty tones, and sweaters likewise. Green and copper are very effective, and a blending of colors is often seen in the knitted wraps.

Hats are simply trimmed felts of easy, comfortable appearance, like the rest of the costume, suggestive of ability to stand wear and tear. Skirts are at least three inches from the ground, and some autumn athletes go in for even briefer petticoats. By now one has got used to the informality of summer costume, ready to exaggerate its comforts a bit.

But the summer has been marked by the vogue of the hatted, rather than the hatless girl, the outing hat is an important part of the costume. The sailor wound about with a scarf is liked, and a Tam o'Shanter effect is in favor.

White serge and white mohair will be worn very late in the fall,, two of the popular summer styles. The serge is made up in strictly tailor fashion, the mohair may be a bit dressier. With bolero or Eton, the white mohair is very dainty; the jacket short enough to disclose the fancy lingerie waist, and itself often trimmed with double or triple frills of lace. A white summer it has been, and the Indian summer will also continue the vogue of white.

Some Good Traveling Wraps

A long coat that quite covers the gown is a very useful garment to have in the wardrobe, but not very well adapted to pedestrian occasions—is too heavy and cumbersome. For carriage and motor wear, and for journeys by train, it is a most serviceable and proper garment.

The new ones of the autumn are rather narrow across the shoulders, but the full-gathered sleeves make up for this change. A yoke breaks the length from neck to waist, and the collar is a new addition to the late 1905 wrap. Large buttons are liked for trimming; otherwise the garment is rather severely simple.

There ispromise, by the way, that this year we are to depart from fuss and feathers and go in for strictly tailored models, a relief, too, this doubtless will be. There is nothing so wearisome, that palls sooner than over-elaboration.

When the long, plain cloak is worn, the hat should match in simplicity. One need not emphasize that this simplicity does not mean cost; it certainly does; cloth of coat and felt of hat must be of the finest.

The Inverness coat, indispensable across the water, is being taken up by American women, and it is a most comfortable, luxuriously warm garment. It is made of softest Scotch woolen, and its cape is of graceful pattern. For one that expects long days out-of-doors, the Inverness coat is just the thing. It comes pretty high, however.

Other coats are made of the Scotch woolens, and this material is one that stands all sorts of weather. It is usually made up into distinctly serviceable wraps, meant for utility and not show. Half loose designs are favored, and big sleeves and pockets. It makes a fine steamer wrap. Trimmings of leather are very appropriate; an attractive garment which was brought to our notice was a mixed brown and green Scotch wool trimmed with leather the tone of the brown in the cloth.

The question is asked if golf capes have quite gone out, and we would answer that a few people still cling to them for steamer wear. They, too, cost a pretty penny if one chooses good material—and a poor cloth will stand no exposure to wind and wave and sun.

Three-quarter coats, straight front and loosely belted in the back, are liked for steamer wear. One excellent model was made of dark blue ornamented with large gold buttons. But while the coat and jacket are more popular, there is a tendency to bring the cape again into favor, the year will show an increasing number of cape-like wraps.

ELLEN OSMONDE.

Art Building in Belgium.

The king of Belgium is developing a mania for building that recalls King Ludwig II. of Bavaria. At present his palace is being rebuilt and the city of Brussels has sanctioned his plans for a "Mont des Arts," which will cost $40,000,000. Near the Cinquantenaire park a triumphal arch is being built by royal command and the architects are busy for the king in Laeken, Ostende and Villefranche. The latest royal project is a Hall of Fame to be built at the Porte de Namur, after the model of King Ludwig's Walhalla.

Prince Collects Beetles.

Among the illustrious personages with queer fads must be numbered Prince Luitpold of Bavaria. His collection of beetles is the most extensive and complete in the world, and th prince is a skilled entomologist, deeply versed in the habits of ants, bees, moths, flies, earwigs and the insect world generally.

BAD CLERK FOR BUSINESS.

Couldn't Dissemble When It Came to Answering Questions of Customers.

An Arctic explorer was praising the late William Ziegler, whose great wealth went in the past to fit so many expeditions of discovery in the white north, relates the San Antonio Press.

"He was a man of the alertest wit," the explorer said. "I never saw his equal in hitting off a person's character in an opposite story. Once, I remember, he was describing a flour manufacturer of loose morals.

"Mr. Ziegler said the manufacturer was like a certain grocer who called his clerk up before him one day and said:

"'That lady who just went out—didn't I hear her ask for fresh laid eggs?'

"'Yes, sir,' the clerk answered.

"'And you said we hadn't any?'

"'Yes, sir; that is correct.'

"The grocer, purple with rage, yelled:

"'Didn't you see me lay those eggs myself on the counter not ten minutes ago? You are discharged, you mendacious scoundrel, and see that you don't look to me for a reference, either.'"

Sound as a Dollar.

Monticello, Minn., Aug. 7th.—Mr. J. W. Moore of this place stands as a living proof of the fact that Bright's Disease, even in the last stages, may be perfectly and permanently cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. Moore says: "In 1898, three reputable physicians after a careful examination told me that I would die with Bright's Disease inside of a year. My feet and ankles and legs were badly swollen; I could hardly stand on my feet and had given up all hopes of getting cured, when a traveling salesman told me that he himself had been cured of Bright's Disease two years before.

"He said he had taken to his bed and expected to die with it, but that he had been cured by a remedy called Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I commenced taking them at once and I am thankful to say that they saved my life. After a short treatment I was completely restored to good health and I am now as sound as a dollar."

CUTICURA OINTMENT

The World's Greatest Skin Cure and Sweetest Emollient—Positively Unrivaled.

Cuticura Ointment is beyond question the most successful curative for torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin and scalp, including loss of hair, ever compounded, in proof of which a single anointing with it, preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap, and followed in the severer cases by a dose of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, is often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing forms of itching, burning and scaly humors, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure when all else fails. It is especially so in the treatment of infants and children, speedily soothing and healing the most distressing cases.

TWENTY YEARS OF IT.

Emaciated by Diabetes; Tortured With Gravel and Kidney Pains.

Henry Soule, cobbler, of Hammondsport, N. Y., says: "Since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me eight years ago, I've reached 70 and hope to live many years longer. But twenty years ago I had kidney trouble so bad I could not work. Backache was persistent and it was agony to lift anything. Gravel, whirling headaches, dizziness and terrible urinary disorders ran me down from 168 to 100 pounds. Doctors told me I had diabetes and could not live. I was wretched and hopeless when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they cured me eight years ago and I've been well ever since."

Tumors Conquered Without Operations

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Cases of Mrs. Fox and Miss Adams.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive menstruation accompanied by unusual pain extending from the ovaries down the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation; secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use and write Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn. Mass., for advice.

Read these strong letters from grateful women who have been cured:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (First Letter.)

"In looking over your book I see that your medicine cures Tumor of the Uterus. I have been to a doctor and he tells me I have a tumor. I will be more than grateful if you can help me, as I do so dread an operation."—Fannie D. Fox, 7 Chestnut St., Bradford, Pa.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (Second Letter.)

"I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine.

"Eighteen months ago my monthlies stopped. Shortly after I felt so badly I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician, and was told that I had a tumor on the uterus and would have to undergo an operation.

"I soon after read one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After taking five bottles as directed, the tumor is entirely gone. I have again been examined by the physician and he says I have no signs of a tumor now. It has also brought my monthlies around once more; and I am entirely well. I shall never be without a bottle of Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the house."—Fannie D. Fox, Bradford, Pa.

Another Case of Tumor Cured by Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"About three years ago I had intense pain in my stomach, with cramps and raging headaches. The doctor prescribed for me, but finding that I did not get any better he examined me and, to my surprise, declared I had a tumor in the uterus.

"I felt sure that it meant my death warrant, and was very disheartened. I spent hundreds of dollars in doctoring, but the tumor kept growing, till the doctor said that nothing but an operation would save me. Fortunately I corresponded with my aunt in the New England States, who advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before submitting to an operation, and I at once started taking a regular treatment, finding to my great relief that my general health began to improve, and after three months I noticed that the tumor had reduced in size. I kept on taking the Compound, and in ten months it had entirely disappeared without an operation, and using no medicine but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and words fail to express how grateful I am for the good it has done me."—Miss Luella Adams, Colonnade Hotel, Seattle, Wash.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all ailing women to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Truths that Strike Home

Your grocer is honest and—if he cares to do so—can tell you that he knows very little about the bulk coffee he sells you. Of course if a woman has lots of time and loves to break her back over a wash tub full of dirty clothes, with the damp, nasty steam filling her lungs, there is no reason why she should not be allowed to do it, poor thing—but, if she is ambitious and has any "git up and git" about her, it is a crime to allow her to ruin her health, mar her happiness and spoil her hands, to say nothing of her humor, in that everlasting deadly monotonous scrub, scrub, scrub in the wash tub.

southwest or at about right angles with the centre of the navy yard and dry dock. The layers stood on edge, which was also favorable. On this account the work has been of special interest to geologists, representatives of the state having spent some time there during the summer making investigations.

WORK COMMENCED IN 1902.

For over a century, or from the time of the birth of the navy yard this point has been a menace to the development of the yard, and while numerous attempts had been made to have the government provide for its removal, it was not until the big $1,000,000 dry dock was well under way that the item of $750,000 was inserted in the naval bill in 1902 for the removal of the point, or at least 320 feet of it, to a depth of 35 feet at mean low water.

The following August the contract was awarded to the Massachusetts Contracting company for $740,000.

The excavation had been carried out directly under the cofferdam, the maximum excavation being 64 feet 6 inches. This left a rim of solid ledge, estimated at 35,000 cubic yards, varying in thickness from 40 to 90 odd feet, and with an elevation of from 30 to 60 feet. The bottom of the pit has been cleared away to the required level, and huge horizontal drills, especially constructed set at work boring 200 gdd holes at the bottom outward, the longest being 80 feet. They vary from six inches at the mouth to 2½ inches at the end. At the extreme end of the point, where the lodge was especially hard, ten or a dozen holes were bored at a height of 20 feet from the ground and along the shore ends of the rim 18 vertical holes, 18 feet in length, have been bored.

Song, Entitled the County Ticket.

Tune—Yankee Doodle.

Election time is drawing near,
We must call your attention—
To the solid men from whom to vote,
Their names I now will mention;
They're honest, upright, brave and true—
The people all respect them,
Republicans the county through
Must hustle and elect them.

For Sheriff we want John D. Swope,
There's none to make objection—
He'll make law-breakers jump the rope,
And give us all protection;
John Lewis for Commissioner,
He surely has no equal,
You'll find him in condition sir
To satisfy the people.

Another good strong man you see,
His name is Samuel Kreider—
Driftwood is his native town,
He'll see no harm betides her;
Another good Commissioner
Whose heart is with his party,
The people on election day
Will welcome him most heartily.

Our Auditors are up to date,
We'll rally to their banner—
George Walker is a gentleman,
And so is O. B. Tanner,
So ring your bells and blow your horns,
And best of all remember,
Be sure to show up at the polls
The seventh of November.

—JOHN F. SULLLIVAN.

WAY TO TREAT HAY FEVER.

No Stomach Dosing, Just Breathe Hyomei—Stops Sneezing and Smarting.

L. Taggart is recommending to his customers as a cure for hay fever, Hyomei.

It is claimed for this remedy that it stops the spasmodic paroxysms, the sneezing, the smarting and running of the eyes and nose, and other acute symptoms of this disease.

Many persons have been cured of hay fever by Hyomei, and the discoverer of the remedy professes to be able to prevent both the occurrence of the annual attack and to stop the progress ot the disease, even in the most chronic forms.

A. Hamlin, of Westford, Mass.. writes "Hyomei cured me ot hay fever in one week's time. I consider it a duty to tell others who sufler from this disease."

This endorsment is only one of hundreds that have been received by the proprietors of Hyomei, and L. Taggart offer to refund the money if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it, is the strongest proof that can be given as to the confidence he has in Hyomei's power to cure hay fever. The complete outfit costs but $1.00, while extra bottles can be procured for 50 cents.

Public is Aroused.

The public is aroused to a knowledge of the curative merits of that great medicinal tonic, Electric Bitters, for sick stomach, liver and kidneys. Mary H. Walters, of 546 St Clair Ave, Columbus, O., writes: For several months, I was given up to die. I had fever and ague, my nerves were wrecked; I could not sleep, and my stomach was so weak, from useless doctors' drugs, that I could not eat. Soon after beginning to take Electric Bitters, I obtained relief, and in a short time I was entirely cured." Guaranteed at L. Taggart's drug store; price 50c.
